Fall Semester 2016
School of Public and International Affairs
Office Hours: by appt. (email: johnson@uga.edu)

Course Description. This course, known informally on campus as “Bombs, Bugs, Drugs, and Thugs,” will provide an examination of America’s secret security policies, with a focus on the nation’s seventeen secret intelligence organizations.

Course Objectives. In this twice weekly sequence of meetings, plus a third meeting for Discussion Section, we will explore how the United States acquires and analyzes information about international and domestic security challenges, as well as how it attempts clandestinely to influence events abroad and to shield the nation against hostile intelligence services and terrorist factions. The course will be a blend of theory, empirical research findings, ethical considerations, reform proposals, and specific case studies.

Course Obligations. Each student will be expected to fulfill four obligations: first, to participate actively in classroom discussions on the lecture and reading material (25 percent of the final grade); second, to take part in a mock congressional inquiry, in which each student will serve on a Task Force (see below) and will help prepare for hearings on some aspect of intelligence reform (25 percent); third, to pass a midterm examination (25 percent); and, fourth, to pass a final examination (25 percent). Each of the two examinations will be based on the content of the classroom lectures and discussions, as well as the reading materials. The precise objectives of the Task Force project will be discussed early in the semester, including how to organize and write a Congressional Briefing Book (CBB). As for class attendance, experience indicates a strong correlation between regular attendance and outstanding grades on the examinations, not to mention the fact that discussion grades are based in part on participation during the class meetings. The instructor will rely in part on the method of peer-group evaluation for assessing the quality of a student’s participation in the Task Force projects.

The Readings
