General Description:

This course focuses on selected topics in the study and practice of public personnel administration. Essentially, it is an analysis of the literature, problems, and directions of public personnel issues. The emphasis is on reading, analyzing the literature, and probing the scope of the field. A variety of class exercises and case analyses will supplement the assigned reading. The central objectives for the course are to enable students to:

1. Develop an appreciation for the dynamic political environment and the statutory and Constitutional restrictions that distinguish public personnel management from its counterpart in the private sector.
2. Understand the history of the civil service in the United States.
3. Define the concept of merit in public employment and be familiar with the evolution of merit systems.
4. Demonstrate knowledge of issues associated with recent civil service reform.
5. Understand equal employment opportunity law and the history of efforts to combat unlawful discrimination.
6. Describe recruitment, examination, and selection procedures.
7. Be familiar with public sector job evaluation techniques.
8. Know how compensation structures are constructed.

This course is intended to promote student mastery of three of the five core competencies required for NASPAA accreditation of our MPA program.

Competency 1: To lead and manage in public governance

Students in the Master of Public Administration program at The University of Georgia will learn the implications of the unique political and legal environment in the public sector and its human management implications. They will be able to understand the importance and dynamics of working in groups or teams to make collaborative decisions, incorporate diverse viewpoints, and create a cohesive and professional product. Furthermore, students will be equipped to identify leadership and management demands across sectors, particularly in the public and nonprofit sectors, including their similarities and differences as well as unique intergovernmental and inter-organizational challenges.

Competency 4: To articulate and apply a public service perspective

Students in the Master of Public Administration program at The University of Georgia will understand and appreciate the intellectual history of American public administration, competing ideological frameworks, and major issues or controversies that have emerged over time. They will learn to apply the profession’s code of ethics to decisions and value conflicts unique to the public sector, ensuring practices remain accountable and transparent. Moreover, students will demonstrate an appreciation of the complex legal/political/fiscal environment of public management.

Competency 5: To communicate and interact productively with a diverse and changing workforce and citizenry

Students in the Master of Public Administration program at The University of Georgia will exhibit knowledge of principles and practices associated with effective public personnel management. Such skills will include the ability to recognize, consider, and respect differing points of view in administrative and policy decisions. Students will execute specific strategies to enhance equity within and representativeness of the public workforce to ensure all people within a government’s jurisdiction are well served. Finally, students will demonstrate an appreciation for diversity and will be able to work productively in teams by displaying composure, professionalism, and effective communication skills.

Required Texts:

Additional reading material is available on the UGA eLC website.

Course Structure:
Attendance and Participation: Students are expected to attend each scheduled class meeting, to be on time, and to be prepared for each class session. A significant proportion of your final grade (15 percent) will be based on the instructor’s assessment of your participation which includes attendance and participation in class discussions, presentations, and exercises.

Only a medical emergency, a death in the immediate family, personal illness, official religious holidays, and academic related absences (e.g., academic conference attendance) will be considered excused. If you miss class for any other reason you will be considered absent from class without a justified reason. Note that students must inform the instructor in advance if they are unable to attend class. This includes sending an email if you are unable to attend class due to a medical illness.

Student Presentations: Students will prepare and present summaries of key court cases or other personnel management issues or policies of their choice. These presentations should be approximately 20 minutes in length and should make use of PowerPoint slides, videos, or other media. Students may work alone or with a partner. You should think of these presentations as training seminars in which you inform your colleagues (and me) of important aspects of the selected topic. Cases and issues for presentation are listed on this syllabus, but you may also present on other topics in which you have an interest. A written summary of the major points of your presentation should be distributed to everyone in class.

Issue Paper: A term paper summarizing and assessing the literature and primary arguments surrounding a key issue affecting contemporary public personnel administration is required. The paper must be a minimum of 15 pages in length. A one-paragraph paper proposal outlining the topic selected by the student and explaining its significance is due on January 29. Students may write papers on the same topics covered by their formal presentations and are encouraged to do so. Papers are due on April 29.

Examinations: There will be a mid-term and a final examination. The mid-term examination, scheduled for March 4, will be completed in class and will consist of multiple choice, short answer, and essay questions covering selected topics. The final examination will be a take-home exam distributed on April 22 and due by 5:00 pm on May 6. Each examination is designed to test your ability to understand and critically evaluate the reading, lecture, and discussion material covered in the course.

Grading: Grades will be based on points obtained but, in general, if your performance in this class is “excellent” you will receive a grade of “A.” If you have good or very good performance, you will receive a “B” or “B+.” Those, if any, who do not have a basic mastery of the material will receive a grade of “C.” A grade of “F,” which is virtually unprecedented, is reserved for those who do not do the work.

Elements of the class are weighted in the following manner:

Academic Honesty: All students must abide by the University of Georgia policy regarding academic honesty. All academic work must be performed without any form of cheating, lying, stealing, or receiving assistance from any other person or using any source of information not appropriately authorized or attributed. The University policy on academic honesty may be accessed at http://www.uga.edu/honesty/.

Computers, Cell Phones, and other Electronic Devices: You may bring a laptop computer to class, and indeed, you are encouraged to do so. You will find it is useful for course work. You may, of course, also bring your cell phone, iPad, or other similar device. However, while you are in class, please refrain from using these devises for activities unrelated to course work. Such activities could include surfing the web, working on Facebook, watching videos, checking your e-mail, tweeting, or engaging in other similar actions. Please also make sure that your phone is silenced during class time.

Students with Disabilities: If you have a disability and would like to request specific accommodations, please contact your instructor. If you plan to request accommodations for a disability, please register with the UGA Disability Resource Center, 114 Clark Howell Hall, Athens, GA 30602. Phone: 706.542.8719, Email: drc@uga.edu.
