This course introduces students to the discipline of political theory by discussing challenging arguments regarding how society is organized. To that end, we will focus on four topics:

- Speech: How should speech be regulated (if it all)?
- Justice: How should a just society distribute economic resources?
- Authority: What is a “state” and why is it necessary?
- Democracy: Is democracy a good way of making political decisions?

Obviously, this course will not cover all or even most of the academic discipline of political theory. Nonetheless, these are central topics of central concern today, and offer a valuable point of entry to political theory. Importantly, while you will become familiar with a variety of arguments, the course is not so much about texts but rather about prompting careful reflection about politics. In particular, the hope is that you will subject various assumptions and practices you take for granted to critical scrutiny. Students are therefore expected to explore and develop their own considered responses to the ideas in the readings.

The syllabus describes (1) course objectives, (2) course materials, (3) grades and assignments, (4) rules and requirements (including important dates), and (5) a course schedule.

The course syllabus is a general plan for the course; deviations announced to the class by the instructor may be necessary.
1. Course Objectives

- Sharpen analytical thinking and debating skills.
- Understand the moral foundations of the modern state.
- Practice engaging with viewpoints different than one’s own.
- Confront difficult moral questions about the way we organize our social life.
- Come to understand one’s personal values better.

2. Course Materials

The following books will be available for purchase from the UGA bookstore.

All other readings will be available on eLC.

3. Assignments and Grading

The following components will make up your grade in this course:

1. Participation: 20%
2. Short Paper: 5%
3. Paper 1: 20%
4. Paper 2: 25%
5. Take-Home Final Examination: 30%

Participation:
Because this is a smaller class, participation is absolutely essential. It is important that you come to class having done the reading, with the readings, and be willing to participate. Repeated unexcused absences are grounds for failing this portion of your grade.

Short Paper:
There will be one short, 400-word paper, due February 5 at 5pm. This paper is intended to prepare you for the longer papers. More information on the short paper will be provided later in the semester.

Long Papers:
There will be two 1500-word papers due throughout semester. The first paper is due March 6 at 5pm, and the second paper due April 27 at 5pm. More information on the papers will be provided later in the semester.
Take-Home Final Examination:
There will be a take-home, open-book final examination in this course. The examination will involve short-answer questions that require you to (i) explain concepts and arguments presented in the texts using your own words, and (ii) compare and contrast claims advanced by the authors.

4. Rules and Requirements

Academic Freedom and Respect:
We will be talking about controversial issues in this course. I expect students to disagree with each other, as well as with me. To that end, it is important to have an open, civil environment to explore and express a variety of positions. The point is to learn something from one another, not to “win.” This requires each of us to engage respectfully with one another, especially when we disagree.

Electronic Devices:
There is good evidence that electronic devices significantly distract from learning. I do not ban laptops because I understand that some people might have very good reasons to use them. That being said, unless you have a very good reason, I recommend not using laptops. From my own experience, not having laptops makes time in classroom more engaging and valuable.

Academic Integrity:
UGA Student Honor Code: "I will be academically honest in all of my academic work and will not tolerate academic dishonesty of others." A Culture of Honesty, the University's policy and procedures for handling cases of suspected dishonesty, can be found at www.uga.edu/ovpi.

Academic dishonesty will not be tolerated on any assignment. You are responsible for knowing and following the honor code and all rules of academic integrity.

Late Work:
For the midterm and final, papers submitted past the deadline will incur a penalty of a third of a letter grade for each 24-hour period the paper is late.

Emergencies do happen. I will accommodate any that should come up. NB: Computer problems do not count as an emergency. Back up early and often. I recommend using a cloud service such as Dropbox or Google Drive.
