Comparative politics is the systematic comparison of differences and similarities across a set of selected countries. Explicit comparisons generate incisive questions and, hopefully, enlightening answers. For instance, why is it that in Sweden a speeding ticket could cost $125,000? Or why is that in many other countries in Asia and in Europe, the coronavirus has been basically reduced to small hotspots while it is raging and increasing in the United States? Such structured comparison can thus be thought of as a method of gaining insights into different cultures, systems, institutions, structures, and other constraints that guide the politics of different countries. When appropriate, lectures will also take a comparative view as to how and why different countries deal differently with COVID-19.

Course outcomes:

- Appreciate HOW and WHY other countries, even though facing similar challenges as the United States, are finding quite different solutions
- You will understand that differences in institutions, cultures, political action, and structures yield very different outcomes.
- Be able to apply what you have learned in class to new topics from outside of class.
- Become a more discerning consumer of information of the political events around the world
- Appreciate the difficulties of why it is so hard to “learn” from other countries
- Finally, because of contrasting the US with other countries, you will develop, not only a better understanding of politics in other countries, but also, and perhaps paradoxically, a deeper knowledge of politics and society in the United States.

The course syllabus is a general plan for the course; deviations announced to the class by the instructor may be necessary.

Teaching, learning, and staying safe in times of the coronavirus:

1. If you are unsure about this coronavirus thing, and need to find out more about it (such as the policy on face coverings, the dawg check, what to do if you have been exposed or have symptoms, how do you get a test, and what to do if you test positive) please visit this site: https://coronavirus.uga.edu/
2. Although this course has been designated an on-line course, face to face interaction with students is made possible with Pedro Goulart, our TA, who meets each class in person and who will conduct discussion sections and personally interact with students.

3. All lectures will be held synchronously, i.e. at the same time, “live” as the class is scheduled to take place. The on-line lecture will be recorded in order for students who can’t sign-in at the scheduled time, are not in class due to social distancing requirements or are unavailable for any other reasons. The recording will uploaded to eLC soon after the lectures are completed and thus, can be viewed from remote locations.

4. Each lecture lasts 1 hour and 15 minutes. During the first hour, the I will conduct the lecture on-line. The final 15 minutes of class time will be reserved for the TA who is present in person in the classroom, and, in conjunction with me, who will be on-line, will conduct a discussion of the topics covered in the lecture as well as the assigned readings and both will be available to answer any questions students have.

Some ground rules:

1. Each day’s assignments and readings must be completed before class, and each student must be ready to conduct a quality discussion on the day’s material. The TA will conduct face to face discussion meetings that will cover the reading and lecture materials in the final 15 minutes of the class.

2. Grade changes: if you feel that a test or assignment was graded incorrectly you must submit a type-written explanation of the problem along with the test or assignment in question within one week of my returning the paper/exam/quiz, etc. to you. I will re-evaluate your work and you will receive a “new” grade, whether that be the same, a higher, or lower grade. The only exception to this rule is for simple errors in calculation.

3. Plagiarism or cheating will not be tolerated. As a University of Georgia student, you have agreed to abide by the University’s academic honesty policy, “A Culture of Honesty,” and the Student Honor Code. All academic work must meet the standards described in “A Culture of Honesty”. Lack of knowledge of the academic honesty policy is not a reasonable explanation for a violation. Questions related to course assignments and the academic honesty policy should be directed to the instructor.

4. Late papers are not acceptable. They are a burden for me and are unfair to your colleagues who do their work on time. Therefore, I will deduct a half a letter grade (5 points) for each day a paper is late. Extensions may be given but only if they are requested well in advance of the deadline, and if there is a compelling reason.

5. If you need to use outside reference works, please consult Joel Krieger, et. al., Oxford Companion to Comparative Politics, Oxford University Press, 2013. Do NOT use Webster’s Dictionary for definitions of things such as “democracy”!

6. Disability arrangements: if you qualify for course adaptations or special accommodation under the Americans With Disabilities Act, please contact the Disability Resource Center (DRC) and provide the appropriate documentation well before exam accommodations are made. Once I have DRC’s documentation all efforts will be made to accommodate any learning disabilities.

Course requirements:
• Discussion of readings/lectures: on elc discussion forum: 10
• Discussion in F2F meetings with TA: 10%
• There will be 5 timed, open book quizzes on eLC each counting for 4% for a total of 20% of the overall grade. These quizzes will consist of a mix of multiple choice, true/false, fill in the blanks, and short answer questions and will cover recent lecture materials and the content of the readings.
• “Applying what you have learned” (see more detail in the reading assignments): 5 one-page reflections on a short reading which should combine the knowledge gained by absorbing the readings as well as the lectures each counting for 5% for a total of 25% of the overall grade.
• Mid-term paper: a current event write-up: due any time before or on October 13. A single-spaced, 12-point Times New Roman, 1-inch margins, three page discussion of a current event, NOT from the USA. The first half of the response should describe the facts: What happened and when? Where? Who was involved? The second half of your response must relate the event to the lectures and readings from the course. How does the event demonstrate a theory we have discussed? Does is remind of you other cases or phenomena? This paper will count for 25% of your total grade.
• Final exam: it is open book and will consist of a number of multiple choice, true/false, fill in the blanks, and short answer questions and will count for 10% of the overall grade. Date will be determined by the final exam schedule.

Reading assignments: This is a NO COST course in terms of expenses for buying books or other instructional materials. All readings are directly linked for your convenience. I made sure that all links are functional – however, if you run into problems, make sure that you log in via your institution. If all else fails, just google the title and author and you should be able to find the reading by logging in via your institution.

Reading assignments:

August 20: Introduction and what can we do to stay safe and sane
August 25: What is comparative politics?
August 27: The “science” in Political Science and how to think straight. A word about Social Science: how to make an argument? Skim this entertaining read: An Introduction to Speculation by Lave and March (1975). An Oldie, but a Goodie!

September 1, 3, and 8: Nations, States and the crises of nation building.

September 10, 15, 17 and 22: Democracy, Authoritarianism and everything in between.

Applying what you have learned: Do you have an authoritarian personality? See where you stand on the F-scale: https://www.anesi.com/fscale.htm and provide a brief (one page) analysis of your own results.
