Course Description

The “Arab Spring” uprisings that swept the Middle East in 2011 and their contentious aftermath have put into question a great deal of the scholarly and popular literature about the region. For decades, the persistence of non-democratic regimes and authoritarian durability dominated discussions about Middle Eastern political systems. Scholars concerned themselves with explaining why there seemed to have been so little progress toward democratization in the region, while elsewhere in the world - from Eastern Europe to Latin America and Asia - countries made strides on the path to democracy. The outburst of popular demand for democracy that brought thousands of people to the streets of Tunisia, Egypt, Yemen, Libya, Syria, and elsewhere in 2011, and led to the toppling of several regimes in some countries, and to violent conflicts in others, requires a reevaluation of scholarly theories about the region.

In this course, we will begin by gaining familiarity with the history of the modern Middle East and with the varieties of non-democratic political systems that have characterized most countries in the region in the last decades. We will then examine the causes and effects of authoritarianism in the Middle East, considering cultural, social, economic, political (domestic, regional, and international) and other factors that have both shaped, and were shaped by, non-democratic regimes. Alongside reviewing the traditional scholarship on the region we will also explore the challenges to these regimes that have over the years laid the foundations for the unfolding of events since 2011. This will allow us to critically evaluate and question longstanding assumptions about authoritarian robustness and the prospects for democracy in the region. Finally, we will turn our attention to current political developments in the Middle East since the start of the uprisings and consider their causes, their divergent trajectories, and the extent to which they open new possibilities for significant political transformation.

¹ The IA building is officially known as Candler Hall. “Allen Candler served Georgia in the U.S. House of Representatives from 1883 to 1891 and as Governor from 1898 to 1902. Candler also served in the Confederate Army, and as Governor, successfully lobbied for a Democratic whites-only primary based on the argument that the Democratic Party was not subject to the Fifteenth Amendment, which prohibits states from disenfranchising voters based on race or skin color. In an 1899 editorial, Candler claimed that the “enfranchisement of the Negro was a crime against civilization.” His tenure coincided with the most violent lynchings in Georgia history, and he was noted for his response to the lynching of Sam Hose in 1899, in which he admonished the black victims of the violence as well as the entire black community.” USG created an advisory group on building names, which recommended to change the names of 75 university buildings across Georgia, including 33 at UGA, among them Candler Hall. However, the Board of Regents decided not to change any of the names.

Assignments

Quizzes

There will be 10 pop quizzes about the readings during the semester.

Presentation

Each pair of students will choose one article/chapter from those appearing under “presentation” on the syllabus and will present it in class during the relevant week. The presentation should be of about 15 minutes and include a brief summary of the piece – main argument, evidence provided, and students’ evaluation of the piece, as well as and an explanation of how it relates to the other readings and topics for that week. The students presenting will also be responsible for preparing three discussion questions and for leading a classroom discussion about the article.

Please send a copy of your presentation to lben@uga.edu by 10pm on Wednesday prior to the Thursday on which you will be presenting.

Participation

This has two components: 1) Students should come to class having read all the required readings and prepared to both pose and answer questions and engage in discussion on the subject matter. 2) Student should post to ELC a one-paragraph response to the readings by 5pm on the day before each class. The response should highlight what you found most interesting in the readings and include 3 questions for discussion about the readings.

Midterm Exam

Midterm exam covering the topics covered in the course so far.

Final Paper

The final assignment will be a research paper on a topic of students' choice. Students should select at least 7-10 academic sources to draw on for their paper's literature review. The paper should be between 10-12 double-spaced pages. Further instructions about the final assignment will be provided in the second half of the semester.

Policies

Academic Integrity

Every student must agree to abide by UGA's academic honesty policy and procedures known as A Culture of Honesty and the University of Georgia Student Honor Code, which work together to define a climate of academic honesty and integrity at the university.

Special Needs

This course is guided by the assumption of dignity and respect for all persons in the classroom. My hope is to support diversity of learners and to provide a non-threatening environment. Students who feel they may need an accommodation based on the impact of a disability should contact me privately to discuss their specific needs. All discussions will remain confidential. To ensure that you receive the most appropriate reasonable accommodation based on your needs, contact me as early as possible in the quarter (preferably within the first week of classes), and make sure that you have contacted the Disability Resource Center: <http://drc.uga.edu>

Electronic Devices

Laptops, iPads, and phones should not be used during class time, unless required for special needs in accordance with the Disability Resource Center. In addition, for some purposes, like pulling up readings, typing answers to questions and preparing for presentations, and to take quizzes, these devices will be permitted.
