Politics is not just what happens in campaigns, elections and in assemblies. It runs much deeper and affects every aspect of an individual’s life. We encounter it in popular culture, “high culture”, in boardrooms, bedrooms, around kitchen tables, playgrounds, nursing homes, and many other places. The impact of the fictional world of the arts on how people absorb “politics” or political commentary cannot be overstated. “Political” films, books or even songs have a power to mobilize people more than any dry fact in a newspaper or fancy econometric model in a prestigious academic journal. The purpose of this class is to sharpen the student’s perception of political messages produced in the arts, connect them to the world of “political science”, and relate them to contemporary political events.

Course outcomes:

In this seminar-style class we examine seven political themes as they appear in films and novels. This class takes a new approach to exploring political themes: we investigate how timeless political topics, such as the “authoritarian impulse”, the “tyranny of the majority”, or “revolution” has been dealt with in fictional form, as manifested in the forms of novels and films. Students will

- Appreciate the power of fiction in mobilizing people for political action.
- Understand how individual political action can affect other individuals, and groups, and even the fate of nations.
- Make students more discerning consumers of information as distributed via the mass and social media.
- By identifying with the protagonists in the various movies and central figures in the novels, students develop a more visceral sense of the ambiguous nature of individual political decisions, often making them to choose sides and unearthing their own hidden prejudices and biases.
- Based on the power of the fictional narrative students become emotionally engaged and develop a deeper understanding of concepts such as democracy, war, race, or authoritarianism, among others.
- Students thus experience international affairs and seemingly distant global issues in an immediate, visceral way.

The course syllabus is a general plan for the course; deviations announced to the class by the instructor may be necessary.
Teaching, learning, and staying safe in times of the coronavirus:

Prohibition on Recording Lectures. In the absence of written authorization from the UGA Disability Resource Center, students may not make a visual or audio recording of any aspect of this course. Students who have a recording accommodation agree in writing that they:

- Will use the records only for personal academic use during the specific course.

- Understand that faculty members have copyright interest in their class lectures and that they agree not to infringe on this right in any way.

- Understand that the faculty member and students in the class have privacy rights and agree not to violate those rights by using recordings for any reason other than their own personal study.

- Will not release, digitally upload, broadcast, transcribe, or otherwise share all or any part of the recordings. They also agree that they will not profit financially and will not allow others to benefit personally or financially from lecture recordings or other course materials.

- Will erase/delete all recordings at the end of the semester.

- Understand that violation of these terms may subject them to discipline under the Student Code of Conduct or subject them to liability under copyright laws.
Course requirements:

This seminar requires some serious reading, writing and active participation on the part of the students. The class requirements are as follows:

1) Participation in discussion forum in eLC: shortly after showing the films I will post a series of questions about the films and the readings in the “discussion” area of the eLC. It is absolutely crucial you participate in this electronic forum in a robust and informed manner. What I’m looking for is not just a response from the students but a “conversation” among the course participants about their interpretations of the events, themes, etc. they have seen/read. I’m not looking for “right” or “wrong” answers – what I’m looking for is an informed, reflective, and honest conversation amongst you. To participate at a quality level means that you will have to have read and digested the book and have seen the film that goes with each theme and the accompanying articles. While the movie and the book are “fictional” the articles are NOT. They are designed to help you understand the themes in more concrete political terms. Participation is measured in the frequency and quality of students’ comments in the “discussion” section of the eLC. This form of participation counts for 10% of the overall grade.

2) In-class participation: this again will be measured by both the frequency and quality of students’ comments and will count for 5% of the overall grade.

3) One page summary of the scholarly readings (there are two for each theme) – they are indicated in red. Those will be graded 0, 60, or 100. This will count for 14% of the overall grade (seven themes, seven one page summaries each counting for 2%). The grade will depend on 3 elements: 1. appropriate and exhaustive summary of the article/exercise/video link, 2. the connection to the lectures presented in class, and 3. on correct grammar and spelling. This will be done in the Assignment portal of the eLC.

4) Attendance: You can miss one class with no questions asked. For each additional class missed, no matter what the reason (unless serious emergencies supported with relevant documentation) I will deduct 3 points from your final grade tally. Attendance will be monitored via Arkaive, which is an attendance checker app. You will need to download the free app from the app store and is available both for i-phones and android phones. If you don’t have a smart phone, or if you have privacy concerns, let me know and I’ll check you in manually at the beginning of class. Arkaive works on the basis of geolocation. At the beginning of the course I will “open” the class on my phone and I’ll give you a 4 letter/digit code which you will have to enter into your app to be recorded as “present” in the class. Attendance counts for 10% of the overall grade.

5) Four quizzes: These will be timed, open book quizzes on eLC and will cover the readings for each theme either via multiple choice questions, true/false answers, short essays, fill in the blanks, etc. Each quiz will count for 5% of the final grade for a total of 20%. These will ask simple factual questions about the novels and the other readings and represent a check on whether students are up to date on the reading assignments.
6) Mid-term paper: each student must produce a typed paper between 8-10 pages in length (conventional fonts and margins) on the following topic:

Does Democracy require dissent or obedience?

The first three themes deal with related topics, that is, the desire of people or groups of people (or animals in the second case) to control society. Please identify and articulate what you believe are the most compelling reasons why you take the position that you do. Convince me with logic, reason, data, and other kind of evidence that you have the strongest possible justification for your position. You must use a minimum of 5 sources (quoted, not cited) to make your case. Feel free to make references to contemporary or historical events but support your assertions with evidence.

This paper will count for 21% of the final grade. February 27, at 11:59 p.m. (via MS Word file sent to my e-mail address).

The mid-term paper grade will be based on the following categories:

1. The strength of your theoretical argument in answering the question
2. The strength of your empirical support and connection to your theoretical argument.
3. The number and appropriateness of the sources you indicate to support your claim
4. The correct quoting/citing of your sources (click here to go to APSA manual of style, start reading from p. 37).
5. Correct spelling and grammar

7) Final paper: the final paper will have to be 12-14 pages in length (with conventional fonts and margins). For this paper, at least 8 NEW sources will have to be quoted (not cited) in order to support your argument. The final paper will count for 20 percent of the final grade.

The grade for the final paper will based on the following categories:

1. Strength of explanation as to why you chose the two (or more) countries to compare and contrast?
2. Appropriateness of the theme to the countries chosen for comparison
3. Strength of empirical support (data, evidence) for your theoretical argument
4. Appropriateness and number of sources used
5. Correct citing and quoting (click here to go to APSA manual of style).
6. Correct grammar and spelling

Here are a few hints in writing this paper: make sure there is a good fit between the themes and the actual political events in the country of your choice. Be as empirical as possible, i.e. demonstrate empirically how the various elements covered in the themes manifest themselves in your country of choice. What are the challenges this country faces? Provide examples of policies that correspond or not, with the theme covered. At what cost are these policies enacted? Who are the major players (such as parties, interest groups, individuals, other political actors). Are the actions of the government legitimate, i.e. supported by a majority of the people?

Take any of the themes we have covered in this class and apply it to at least two countries, one of which can be the United States. Compare and contrast the two cases. the current politics of the countries of your choice and explore to what degree the themes covered reflect the actual policies and events in those countries.

Choose one from the following questions: (each question is connected to the seven themes)

1. If people perceive laws to be unjust, do you think they should follow them?
2. How can erstwhile democracies slide back into authoritarianism?
3. The RAND corporation describes the times we live in as one of “truth decay”. Is this dangerous for democracy, and if yes, what could be done about it?
4. Does immigration threaten or enrich (culturally, economically) the receiving societies?
5. Why is it so hard to agree on global environmental regulation and what would be required to stave off further environmental degradation?
6. Rising economic inequality has been made responsible for increasing political polarization. Do you agree/disagree with this statement and is it advisable to reduce economic inequality? If yes, how could that be done?
7. Does work and life in consumerist and capitalist society (where, according to several scholars, everything is marketized and where relationships become purely instrumental and contingent) corrode character?

Your paper should provide a clear answer to the questions posed, based on empirical evidence, logic, or theory. The final paper is due on May 3, 2024 via MS Word file sent to my e-mail address by HIGH NOON.

Required readings:

- George Orwell. Animal Farm (1946).
- Sinclair Lewis. It can’t happen here (1935).
- Upton Sinclair. The Jungle (1906).
- Sinclair Lewis: Babbitt (1922).

In addition, there are various articles required also. For your convenience, they are all linked and can be downloaded directly at no cost. Make sure you log in via your institution. If this still does not work, just google the title and find the article this way.
Some ground rules:

1. This is not a lecture-style class. I will encourage as much participation as possible. How much you will get out of this class will depend on your own willingness to participate!
2. No chatbotting please! Think for yourself. I can actually use a chatbot to check whether you have used a chatbot to write your paper. If that’s the case – please read the UGA policy on academic honesty.
3. This course covers seven themes: the authoritarian personality; tyranny of the majority and the culture of dissent; social engineering and its limits; immigration, integration, and identity; political activism and revolution; between conformism and anomie, and environmental thought and action. Typically, there will be a “movie week” when most of the class time will be used to watch a full feature movie, followed by a break and a general discussion with the TA about the themes covered in that movie. The next week I will provide the political context for the themes covered in the movies and literature. We will examine historical examples provide theoretical explanations as well as connecting the fictional accounts with the political science literature that also informs each week’s themes.
4. Late papers are not acceptable. They are a burden for me and are unfair to your colleagues who do their work on time. Therefore, I will deduct a FULL letter grade for each day a paper is late. Extensions may be given but only if they are requested well in advance of the deadline, and if there is a compelling reason.
5. Plagiarism will not be tolerated. Any student turning in a written assignment which is not their own work or is AI generated will receive a failing grade for the course, and may have further implications. All academic work must meet the standards contained in “A Culture of Honesty.” Students are responsible for informing themselves about those standards before performing any academic work.
6. The use of sources is essential. On the midterm paper and on the final paper, you must make reference to the sources from which you drew your information. For information on how to cite correctly go to the APSA manual of style.
7. I do not expect that your views and perceptions of these controversial themes are identical with mine or your classmates’, either now or at the completion of the course. The Politics, Film and Literature course is a place for the free and perhaps even heated exchange of ideas. Thus I expect you to challenge viewpoints that differ from your own, but I also expect you to substantiate your arguments from the readings, lectures and discussions.
8. This is a NO-TECH class. No laptops, phones, or tablet use in class. Please turn off all cell phones, pagers or other electronic devices that will disturb either your classmates – or your professor – during class. In this class you need to listen, observe, and actively participate and, take notes, preferably on a college ruled yellow pad.
9. If you need to use outside reference works, please consult Joel Krieger, et. al., Oxford Companion to Politics of the World, Oxford University Press, 2001 as a place to start for political terms or concepts – DO NOT USE WEBSTER’S DICTIONARY to define terms such as DEMOCRACY.
10. If you believe that you deserve a better grade, please provide an explanation to me in writing within a week of receiving the grade. I will then grade your exam/paper again and I will issue a “new” grade which will be either the same, a higher, or a lower grade.

Reading assignments and dates: Each theme consists of two classes. The first class of each segment is the “movie class”, the second is the discussion and presentation class for each theme. Make sure that you have read and digested the readings before the discussion and presentation meeting which means you should start reading the materials the week we start watching the movies.

January 9:
Introduction of the class, explanation of themes, and expectations.

January 16:
The authoritarian personality – the authoritarianism from within (Theme 1)

Readings (Book) Sinclair Lewis (1935) It can’t happen here. (entire).

Dick Geary (1998) “Who voted for the Nazis?”

(one page summary of these two articles are due on January 23, via Assignments in the elc portal).

January 23:
Lecture on Theme 1

January 30:
Authoritarianism from without, tyranny of majority, and the culture of dissent (Theme 2)

Movie: Good Night and Good Luck

(one page summary of these two articles is due February 6).

February 6: Lecture on Theme 2

February 13: Social engineering and its limits (Theme 3

Movie: Skin (2008)
