Assignments

Attendance

The purpose of an attendance policy is to ensure students develop skills to be a dependable team member and class participant. Each student is able to have three unexcused absences (so long as they let their group members know they will not be present and are responsible for completing all work missed). After three unexcused absences, each subsequent unexcused absence deducts 1.5 percent from the final grade. Coming late and leaving class early will be considered unexcused absences without proper communication with your group and instructor.

10%

Unexcused absence after three worth 1.5% each

Course Reader Assignments

The purpose of these assignments is for students to identify main ideas from course materials. At the beginning of each module, each student will review the materials outside of class before the first class period. While reading the material (i.e., open notes), students will complete a Course Reader Assignment on eLC.

20%

Seven assignments, each worth 2.86%

Policy Briefs

The purpose of these assignments is for students to practice creating clear, concise, and complete policy briefs that analyze the key problems facing a given actor and recommend the best future strategic choices for their assigned actor based on a thorough cost-benefit analysis. To complete this assignment, students will make a copy of a policy brief template provided, complete the relevant sections, and submit these assignments as a pdf on eLC.

20%

Seven assignments, each worth 2.86%

Press Conference Assignments

Students will be able to work collaboratively to converge policy positions within their group. Some groups will be given the opportunity to present their positions to the entire class and gain feedback on them in the form of a press conference (i.e., a question and answer session). All press conference slides should be presented as an image copied directly into the Discussion thread.

Seven assignments, each worth 2.86%

Simulation Preparation & Participation Materials

Students will negotiate resolutions to the political issues via an in-class political simulation. Documentation of simulation participation will be submitted via eLC.

Seven assignments, each worth 2.86%

Reflection

Students will be able to reflect on their group's overall and individual successes and challenges as well as the evolution in their position on the political issue at hand from the beginning of the module until its end.

10%

Seven assignments, each worth 1.43%

Attendance & Assignment Expectations

- Regular attendance is required due to the interactive and collaborative nature of this course.
- In the rare circumstances in which you will not be in attendance, no documentation is needed so long as you communicate to your group that you will be absent and submit all assignments via eLC before the deadline.
- If you do not submit an assignment before the deadline and wish to have an extension, you must provide a formally documented excuse (e.g., doctor's note) via email to the instructor (leahlang@uga.edu) within 24 hours of the assignment deadline. Your instructor will review the documentation and respond via email with a plan for submitting the overdue assignment.
- In addition to documentation to the instructor, you must also included evidence that you contacted your group members of you were unable to assist with the work (please do not include any formal documentation to your peers). In such case, your instructor will review the documentation and evidence of correspondence with the group. If accepted, she will respond via email with a plan for submitting an individual assignment in lieu of the group work.
- Assignments will be created from original thought and not AI generation for this course. This is not to say that AI is not useful. However, for this introductory course, it is essential students demonstrate their own understanding of the course material throughout each assignment. Failure to adhere to these expectations will result in a submission of your case to academic dishonesty.

Fundamental Rules of Respect

- We will be respectful and actively engaged with each other and the ideas presented by others. Both personally and professionally, I value open discourse across the political spectrum.
- If you feel that anyone is not allowing you to express well-informed political opinions at any time, please feel free to communicate with me. We will all work to ensure that our contributions to the class discussion improve (rather than detract from) the quality of the course. Active engagement is prized, but we will not tolerate discourse meant to quiet others. Instead, we will work toward discussions that seek to value all contributions.
- Professional courtesy and sensitivity are especially important when dealing with differences in race, culture, religion, politics, sexual orientation, gender, gender variance, and nationalities.
- Class rosters with the student's legal name are provided to the instructor. I am eager to address you by your preferred name and/or gender pronoun. Please advise me of this preference early in the semester so that I may make appropriate changes to my records.
